Will Transnistria run out of energy in 3 weeks?

In the capital of Transnistria, a Kremlin-backed microstate sandwiched between Moldova and Ukraine, the festive New Year's lights have gone dark ahead of schedule. This separatist sliver of Moldova will run out of energy in three weeks, the head of its Russia-backed government has said.

Does Russia still buy energy from Transnistria?

Despite ending gas purchases from Russia, it still bought large amounts of its energy from Transnistria, which uses Russian gas to generate electricity at the Cuciurgan power plant. The Cuciurgan power station in Transnistria turns Russian gas into electricity, some of which it sells to Moldova.

Will Chisinau sell gas to Transnistria?

Chisinau has offered to sell gas and energy to Transnistria, although officials in Tiraspol show little sign of accepting the offer. The main reason is economic. Unlike Moscow, Chisinau is not proposing to send gas for free. After 30 years of abundant, low-cost energy, Transnistrians would now have to pay the same rate as those in Moldova proper.

Can Russia end the energy crisis in Transnistria?

Russia may also stand to gain from declining to end the energy crisis in Transnistria - whose people it claims to support. Russia has long worked to destabilize Moldova, most recently in its presidential election in October, which was framed as a choice between Moscow and the West.

How has Russia impacted Transnistria?

Russia's move to cut off energy supplies to Moldova and the demise of a gas transit deal with Ukraine have backfired on Moscow's few remaining allies in Europe, particularly the pro-Russian breakaway region of Transnistria, which has been left without a vital source of power in the middle of winter. Get concise answers to your questions.

Does Transnistria have free gas?

Transnistria -- internationally recognised as part of Moldova but de facto ruled by a pro-Russian separatist government since a short war in 1992 -- has for years enjoyed virtually free Russian gas, piped to it via Ukraine.

Moldova's pro-European central government renewed its criticism of Russia, saying it caused the energy crisis and now wants to portray itself as the power that was ...
